PORTS, FORTS AND CAMPS OF THE WILD FIELDS AND BUDJAK

A Gazetteer of Steppe, River and Black Sea Settlements between the Danube and the Donets

10 November 2026 - Aust Kätzchen | austkaeztchen@confoederatio.org

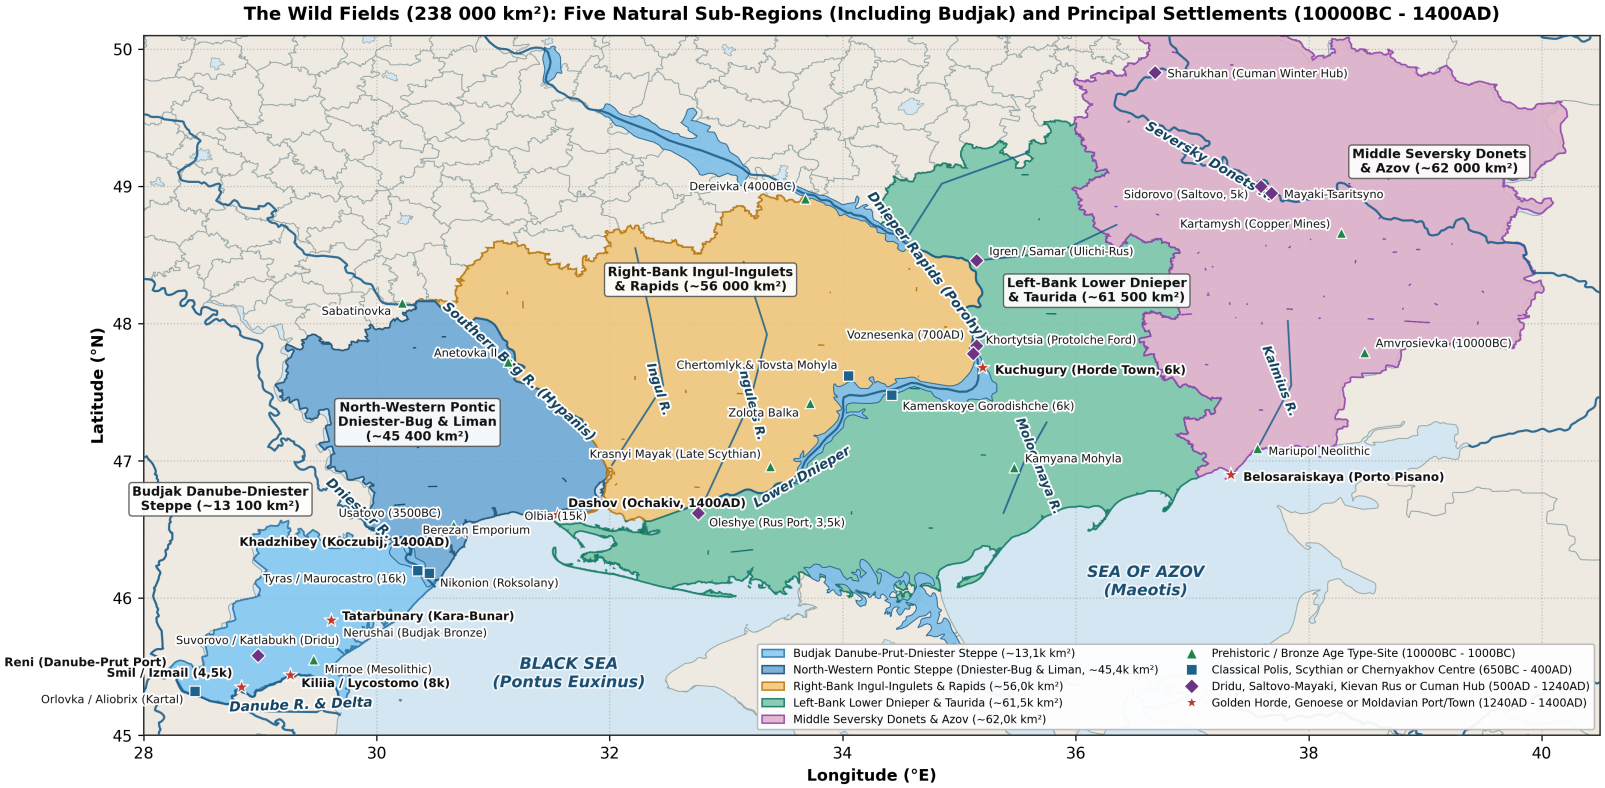

Figure 1. Locations of the principal estuary ports, river-bluff forts and steppe settlements catalogued across the five divisions of the Wild Fields and Budjak (~238k km^2), from the Danube lakes and Dniester-Bug limans to the Dnieper Rapids and the Middle Seversky Donets.

Abstract

This gazetteer compiles coordinates, historical names and benchmark population estimates for 191 settlements and archaeological sites across the Wild Fields and Budjak (~238k km^2) between the Lower Danube and the Seversky Donets from 10000BC to 1400AD. Prehistoric entries cover Ice Age and Mesolithic river camps (Anetovka II, Mirnoe and the Vasylivka rapids cemeteries), Copper Age Bolgrad-Aldeni and Usatovo villages, the Yamnaya stone fort at Mikhailovka and Late Bronze Age Sabatinovka farming villages and Bakhmut copper mines (Kartamysh). Classical and Late Antique entries track the Milesian Greek ports of Pontic Olbia (12k - 15k in 500BC), Tyras (6k), Nikonion and Berezan, the 1,2k ha Scythian ironworking town of Kamenskoye Gorodishche (6k), the 16 Late Scythian stone forts on the Lower Dnieper and the dense village network of the Chernyakhov culture up to 375AD. Medieval entries follow the Dridu villages of Budjak, the Khazar-era Saltovo-Mayaki forts on the Seversky Donets (led by Sidorovo at 5k in 900AD), the Kievan Rus river ports of Oleshye (3,5k in 1200AD), Protolche and Igren-Samar, the Polovtsian winter towns of Sharukhan, Sugrov and Balin, and the fourteenth-century Golden Horde, Genoese, Moldavian and Lithuanian ports of Aq Qerman (15k - 16k in 1300AD), Kiliia (6,5k - 8k), Velyki Kuchugury (5,5k - 6k), Dashov and Khadzhibey.

Methodology

The 191 settlements and archaeological sites of the Wild Fields and Budjak (~238k km^2) recorded between 10000BC and 1400AD are listed below across its five regions: Budjak (I), the north-western Pontic steppe (II), the right-bank Bug-Dnieper and Ingul-Ingulets uplands (III), the left-bank Lower Dnieper, Veliky Lug and northern Taurida steppe (IV) and the Middle Seversky Donets and Azov basin (V).

Each entry gives the settlement name, historical or alternative names, coordinates, dates of occupation and population estimates. Figures are based on site area and house counts for prehistoric camps and Bronze Age villages, Greek town and rural hinterland surveys, Dridu and Saltovo-Mayaki fort enclosures, Kievan Rus chronicle and excavation evidence and Golden Horde, Genoese, Moldavian and Lithuanian port records up to 1400AD [1][2][3][4][5][6].
